

Big Trucks, Little Cars...My, Oh My!

So many vehicles pass us by!

A fun rhyming book about transportation

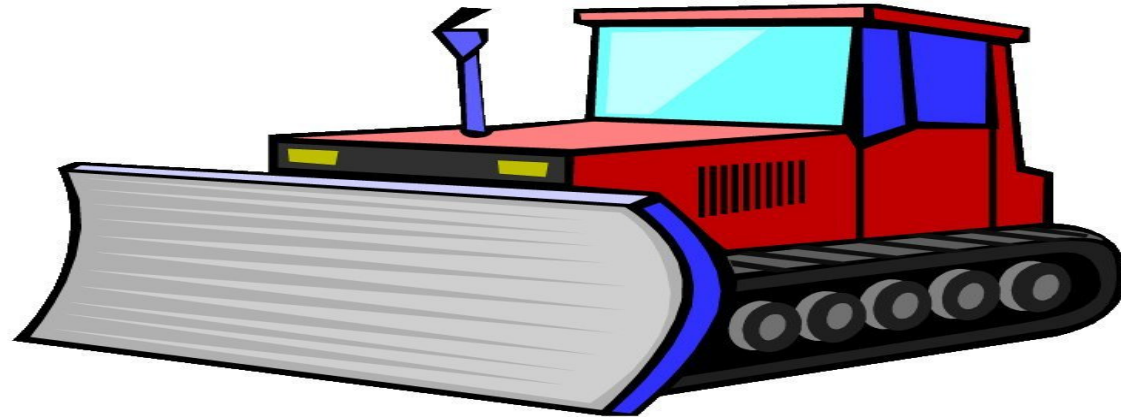

Written by Staci Dodge

The sun was shining as we talked. Mom decided we should go for a walk.

The day was busy and the traffic was loud but the beautiful sky didn't have a single cloud. I looked to the left, I looked to the right, there were so many things within my sight.

I stared in awe at a big machine. It was unlike anything I had ever seen. I asked my mom what it could be. She gave a smile when she looked at me. That's a bull dozer honey.

They push the piles of dirt around, filling up holes within the ground.

"Oh." I said as I spied a huge truck. Today I was having all kinds of luck.

As I sleep as I dream there are so many things to be seen.

I see a school bus driving along, whistling a very happy song.

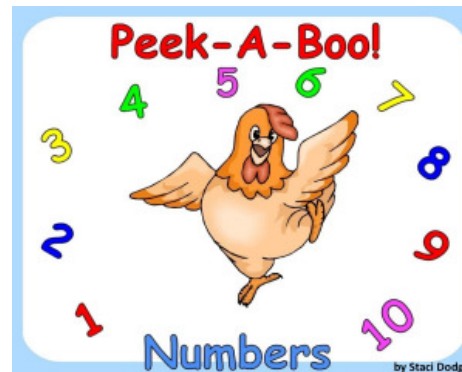

Random Page From Book

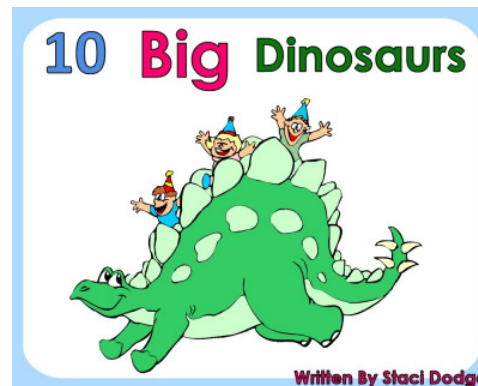

I see critters in a boat. How does that thing stay afloat?
